SEEK FEDERAL APPROVAL OF TOWER BID

Village Board Awards Contract to Chicago Bridge and Iron Co.

AGREEMENT REACHED IN REALTY MATTER

The accepted contract and all necessary data and documents relative to Antioch's proposed new water tower today were in the hands of the director of the Chicago federal office of the Public Works Administration. Details of the project were placed in the hands of the federal representatives by Nason B. Sibley, chairman of the water committee of the village board, who today visited the Chicago office to deliver personally the documents and to explain any details about which the federal men may inquire.

Chicago Firm Successful Bidder

The successful bidder for the contract of erecting the new tower of 110,000 gallons capacity was the Chicago Bridge & Iron Co., whose bid was $3,740, it was disclosed at the opening of the bids Tuesday. The only competing bidder was the Pittsburgh-Des Moines Steel Co., whose bid was $205.00 higher than that of the Chicago firm. The lower bid was approved immediately by the village board, and now the final step before actual construction starts is the federal sanction from Washington which is expected within a very short time. Time required for the erection of the new tower and tank will vary from eight to twelve weeks according to weather conditions, contractors stated. Most of the labor will have to be done by workers skilled in the structural steel trade; however, local labor will be employed as much as is possible, committee members stated.

Reach Realty Agreement

Meanwhile a tentative agreement has been reached whereby the village will acquire control of additional frontage to permit of an outlet on Orchard street and an extra 34 feet adjoining the southern line of the village property. The consummation of the deal will require the signatures of the village board of seven members and 14 property owners who appear as interested in two land syndicates.

This transaction will involve an expenditure of $1,580, according to the tentative agreement, and 30 per cent of this amount is expected as a grant from the government. The balance is to be paid in amounts of $100 each quarter from the accumulated earnings of the water department. No interest will be paid.

With the acquiring of this addition to the village property there will be ample space for the erection of the new tower without interfering with garage and housing equipment for village owned property.

Twenty Year Old Liquor Creates Stir in Antioch

A rare bottle of spiritus frumenti, labeled as having been barrelled 20 years ago, was discovered on top of an ice box in the basement of Bernie Field's tavern a few days ago. The rare stuff caused considerable excitement among some of the fellows in town, and many of them were anxious to taste of the rare vintage made by the Walker distilleries previous to 1914.

Protest Against Consolidated School Found in N. Y. Paper

Protest against the consolidated rural school system as conducted in New York state was recently printed in the "Rural New Yorker" published at LeRoy, New York, thus indicating that Illinois is not the only state faced with serious school problems.

Among the ill conditions attributed to the centralized school, the following were mentioned: increased taxes; hardships for the children, such as early morning walks, cold, danger of bus accidents.

The writer lauded the work of the Rural School Improvement Society in preserving and protecting the one-room rural school from the grip of centralization, and keeping the school money within the school district where the tax payers know how it is being spent.

Aged Woman Found Dead In Cottage

Mrs. Laura LaPar Passes Away at Bluff Lake Home Unattended

Funeral services for Mrs. Laura LaPar, 73, who was found dead at her home at Bluff Lake Sunday morning, were held Wednesday afternoon from Strang's funeral home, the Rev. L. V. Sittler officiating. Burial was in the Hillside Cemetery.

Mrs. LaPar had been living alone for some time, although she had not been in good health. When Paul Ferris went to deliver some mail and provisions to her about 12:30 Sunday afternoon, he found the house closed and was unable to arouse anyone. Fearing that she might have been stricken, he reported to Supervisor William Roseng, who forced an entrance and found her lying dead in her bed. It was their opinion that she had been dead for three or four days.

Mrs. LaPar has lived in this vicinity for about thirty-six years. She was born February 24, 1860, in Germany, but came to America when a little girl seven years old.

She is survived by a son, Henry, Rockford, Ill., and four grandchildren. A daughter, Mrs. Herman Siedschlag, preceded her in death last August.

Governor Henry Horner will deliver New Year's greetings and review the first year's work of his administration in a radio broadcast at 2:00 P. M. New Year's day over stations WBBM and KMOX, according to a telegram received by the News this morning from Daniel Sullivan, chairman of the administration's press committee.

WAGONS, BUGGIES MUST CARRY LIGHTS ON STATE HIGHWAY

Highway Department Orders That Law Be Enforced

Orders that the law requiring drivers of wagons, buggies, or other horse-drawn vehicles to display lights when proceeding along a state highway is to be enforced in the future, according to Paul Chase, state motorcycle policeman, who says he has received such order from the state highway department.

All horse-drawn vehicles should display a white light in front and a red light in the rear, according to the statute. Absence of lights on such vehicles has been the cause of many fatal accidents, according to the highway department officials, and it is thought that a more rigid enforcement of the law will prevent many of these mishaps which are more frequent at this time of year, due to the fact the shorter days and many farm wagons and other vehicles on the highways, after darkness.

State Commander Speaks At Legion Membership Dinner

A chicken dinner was served to eighty-five ex-service men at the American Legion dinner held at the Guild hall last Thursday night as a wind-up to the season's membership drive. The drive is considered quite successful, as about forty new members have been secured, under the leadership of Clarence Shultis, George Garland, and Paul Chase, membership chairman.

The chief speakers of the evening were State Commander Charles C. Kapschul, Deerfield; County Bogardus Supervisor William Woodard, North Chicago; and Eighth District Commander, Henry Foval, all of whom spoke on various phases of relief work.

Woodard has just recently received his commission from Washington as the veterans' replacement representative of the U. S. for Lake County.

The Grayslake, Lake Region, and North Chicago posts were represented at the dinner.

Those serving on the committee in charge were Rev. Rex Simms, William Hallways, and John Horan. The meal was prepared and served by Charles McCorkle, Tom Sullivan, and Clarence Rosenstock.

Petty Attends Fraternity Banquet and Teachers' Meet

Mr. Petty continued to Springfield and attended the annual banquet of the Kappa Delta Pi society at the Abraham Lincoln hotel Wednesday. He also attended the Illinois State Teachers' Association meeting at Springfield, held Dec. 26, 27, and 28.

1934 FISHING LICENSES OUT

Village Clerk Roy L. Murre today received the new 1934 fishing licenses from the state department of conservation. There has been no change in the price of licenses, which are 50 cents for residents and $3.00 for non-resident licenses. Fishing through ice in this locality is a great winter sport and it is expected that many licenses will be sold within the next few weeks.

LOCAL COMMITTEE NAMED TO ASSIST ON HOG-CORN PLAN

Will Act as Advisors in Organizing Production Control Assn.

Names of seven men appointed by the state advisory committee to be members of the temporary campaign committee for the governments' corn-hog adjustment program in Lake county were received today by Farm Adviser H. C. Gilkerson.

Members of the newly appointed committee are: C. A. Faulkner, Gurnee; Raber Radke, Grayslake; August Buesching, Barrington; Dave Covert, Mundelein; H. C. Ames, Zion, Carl Hughes, Lake Villa, and Anthony G. Wegener, McHenry.

The state advisory committee which appointed the county committee is composed of Dean H. W. Mumford, director of extension, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, Chairman; J. E. Fulkerton, Jerseyville; Ray E. Miller, director of livestock marketing for the Illinois Agricultural Association, Chicago, and J. H. Lloyd, assistant director of the Illinois State Department of Agriculture, Springfield.

Appointment of the temporary county committee marks the first step in the local campaign calling for reducing to the government of 20 to 30 percent of the average corn acreage grown during the past two years, the basis of payment to be 30 cents a bushel on the average yield. The hog agreement, in return for a reduction of 25 per cent from the average production of the past two years, will pay the cooperating producer $5 a head on 75 per cent of his average hog production during the two-year base period. Expenses of administering the program will be deducted from benefit payments due the contract signers.

Members of the newly appointed county committee will assist Farm Adviser Gilkerson and the extension service of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois in planning the county campaign, in dividing the county into communities, arranging the schedule of community meetings, selecting temporary community committee to help with the meetings and sign-up stations and arranging for the official organization meetings in the various communities when it comes time to form the county corn-hog production control association.

Aged Antioch Pioneer Resident Passes Away

Walter Palmer, 84, Dies at His Home North of Antioch

Walter Palmer, 84, well-known Lake county pioneer and farmer, passed away at his home north of Antioch yesterday morning from the effects of what was thought to be a slight stroke suffered last week. He has been ill for the past five or six weeks.

Funeral services will be conducted by the Rev. L. V. Sittler at Strang's funeral home at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Interment will be in the Angola cemetery, Lake Villa.

He was born November 26, 1849, in Somersetshire, England. He lived for nine years in Walworth, Wis., where he was united in marriage to Miss Mary Bruce, February 6, 1879. Seven boys were born to this union, one of whom passed away in infancy. He and his family moved to Antioch over fifty-five years ago, where he spent the remainder of his life.

He was engaged in active farming near Antioch for over thirty years. For the past twenty-two years he has been retired, living with his wife at their home on the Sylvan Beach road northwest of Antioch. He was a member of the Woodman lodge for many years.

He is survived by his wife, six sons, Frank, Duluth, Minn.; Fred, John, and Harry, Antioch; Edward and George, Chicago; and five grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. George Anzinger, Chicago, were Christmas guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Grimm.

Frigid Wave Recalls Contrast To Last December, Kelly Says

The sub-zero temperature of yesterday morning, when Antioch thermometers were found to have dropped to as low as 20 degrees below zero, recalled the decided contrast with the same day a year ago when the temperature reached a high of 46, a climb of 16 degrees above the early morning low of 28. The figures were given out by William Kelly from his handy notebook in which he keeps a permanent record of weather conditions.

A year ago today was also a mild winter day, according to Mr. Kelly's record. The low mark for December 28, 1932, was 28 degrees above, and the high was 54 degrees. The low mark for the winter months was on February 7, when the mercury tumbled to 30 below, according to Kelly. The work of filling Wolf's ice house at Loon lake began Dec. 27, according to another notation in Kelly's book, and another notation stated that the price of eggs on that day was 14 cents a dozen.

SENATE MAY BALK LIQUOR BILL AT SPECIAL SESSION

Horner-Kelly Break Over "Home Rule" May Delay Law

Springfield, Dec. 28.—When the special session of the legislature convenes on Jan. 3 indications are that the senate will refuse to pass the house liquor bill because of the 108 amendments made in the senate. The house will then, more than likely, pass the Sol Handly bill for liquor control. This will be exactly like the Quebec liquor commission law under which only beer can be sold in taverns, beer and wine in restaurants, and "hard liquor" only in state liquor stores and then only in limited quantities to be drunk in private.

It will be a miracle if Illinois gets any sort of a liquor law before July 1, in the opinion of veteran legislators. In the meantime anybody can sell all the liquor they want by taking out a $20 federal license, except saloonkeepers who have taken out state beer licenses. The Horner-Kelly control law provides that any state beer license holder shall be fined and imprisoned for selling any beverage containing more than 3.2 per cent of alcoholic content. This, however, does not apply to any nonholder of a state beer license.

As the senate adjourned last week charges were openly made that Gov. Horner had taken advantage of the innocence of Mayor Kelly of Chicago. It seems that they met the previous Sunday in the executive mansion—two good members of the Chicago Tammany machine—to decide what would be best for the people of the state. Kelly wanted dictatorial control over the 10,000 Chicago saloons for political purposes.

Kelly had the most witnesses present, which is always important. The meeting broke up it was announced that it had been agreed that the state was to be allowed to get several millions of dollars a year in taxes and that Kelly could run the Chicago saloons without interference from the state. Kelly, the Irishman, had gotten the power and Horner the money. At least it was so announced.

DeWitt Billman, of the legislative reference bureau, was present, however, at the conference as a Horner witness. He drew up the amendments to the liquor control bill as agreed upon. They went into the senate. Then it was discovered that Kelly was not to get absolute control over Chicago saloons. The provision for a state appeal board was still in the bill.

The Tammany boys from Chicago howled "double cross." Kelly issued an official statement to the effect that the governor must have "misunderstood the agreement" and that "if the governor would consult with those present at the conference he would realize that he was wrong." Kelly still had the most witnesses.

STATE ABOLISHES PROPERTY TAX; USE SALES LEVY

Sales Tax Makes Possible 50 Cent Cut on Property Levy

Abolition of the property tax for state purposes was announced at Springfield yesterday by the levy board, composed of Governor Horner, State Auditor Edward J. Barrett, and Treasurer John C. Martin.

The step was taken after the courts had upheld the validity of the two per cent tax on retail sales, which with some help from liquor taxation is expected to replace the 35 million dollars levied annually in recent years on general property.

The decision affects state taxes only, which in 1932 was 50 cents on the $100 valuation.

Higher Rate Averted

Were it not for availability of the sales tax as a substitute, the state levy for 1933 would have been between 70 cents and $1, due to the fact that general property valuations have dropped from seven thousand million dollars to around five thousand five hundred million dollars.

Saves Property Owners 8%

The estimated reduction in all property taxes for Lake county through the elimination of the state tax will be about 8 per cent under the 1932 taxes, according to figures announced at Springfield yesterday. Several counties will effect a saving of 7 per cent to property owners, while Monroe county heads the list as being most benefited by a saving of 19 per cent.

While this tax burden is lifted from the shoulders of property owners and is proudly referred to as a saving to them by the administration, the burden must fall elsewhere, students of the commonwealth's finances declare. Those who found it necessary to make purchases during August, September and October made a sales tax contribution to the state in excess of eight million dollars, records disclose. Some have estimated that the sales tax will produce about $40,000,000 annually for the state. If so, the Horner administration should not have much trouble carrying on the functions of government since the previous administration turned over to the Horner regime $13,500,000 which had been saved during the first 18 months of the biennium.

Chimney Fire Threatens House Christmas Night

Use Extinguisher to Put Out Fire in Truck; Garage and Auto Burn

Antioch firemen responded to a call in sub-zero weather Christmas night to the Al Swenson farm a mile southeast of Hickory Corners, but upon their arrival at the farm, found that the chimney fire had been extinguished by members of the family by using a fire extinguisher. Fearing that the flames would spread and destroy the house, a call had been sent in to the department, as soon as the fire was discovered.

The Swenson family had moved to that farm from an adjoining farm about three weeks previously. The damage was considered to be small.

Truck Catches Fire

Harvey Cunningham's Chevrolet truck caught ablaze when he applied heat to loosen up the carburetor after the choke had become frozen yesterday morning. A fire extinguisher from the Post Office was used to put out the flames. Little damage was done to the car.

Garage and Auto Burn

A garage owned by Joseph Frana and an automobile belonging to Rex Bain, at Eagle Point, Pistakee Bay, were destroyed by fire Tuesday night. The Fox Lake and Ingleside fire departments were called to prevent the flames spreading to nearby buildings.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Patrovsky were Christmas guests of Mr. William Kalal, Berwyn, Ill.

THE OLD AND THE NEW

By Claudius E. Wade

Old 1933, tired and worn out, will soon totter across the finish line and call it enough. Bells will ring, whistles will blow, people will celebrate, because the old is going or the new coming, I know not.

In 1933, some people have been glad, some have been sad, some welcome its going, others regret it, but feel as we may about it, it has taken its place in the eternal pages of time, never to return again.

Of this unwinding skein of continuity that we call time, each of us weaves his life. One makes a beautiful design, while another impatiently throws down a snarl of clumsy knots and broken threads.

It is, indeed, very fitting that we should in all sincerity make new resolutions; also, we should revise and revise those made in other years. We should not make our resolutions in haste. If they are not worth thinking about, they are not worth making. Instead of trying to correct and improve the world, we will first remove from ourselves those things which we so much dislike in others.

Resolve to do what you ought to do, when you ought to do it, the best you can do it, and 1934 will be the best year you ever had.

SILVER AND PROSPERITY

Proponents of monetization of silver are finding a steadily increasing number of allies among business men, economists, officials and the public generally.

This would be an excellent time for an unbiased survey of potential legislation toward that end. The uncertain monetary question is one of the most perplexing problems of the time, and its early settlement is vital to recovery.

WILL THE FARMER "COOPERATE"?

An article in the Index points out that the Agricultural Adjustment Administration is preparing some 50 marketing agreements for the different milksheds throughout the country. These agreements will formulate price plans for fluid and surplus milk, will establish the quantities of milk which may be sold by distributors at the fluid price, and will set a minimum distributor's retail price to prevent ruthless price-cutting. But, as the Index says further, the marketing agreements will obviously be of small worth if they are not supported by output restriction to eliminate constant and increasing overproduction of dairy products.

It's an interesting fact that the success or failure of governmental relief plans is always up to the farmers themselves. If they go on producing more than the consuming public will buy, all efforts to stabilize markets and better prices will make about as much impression as another bucket of sand poured into the Sahara.

The way out is through organization—through strong, loyally backed cooperatives, managed by men with a thorough, unprejudiced, non-political view of farm problems. In the New York Milkshed such a cooperative exists—and it has been a tower of strength in the face of strikes, of campaigns to break down farm organization, of disorganized price structures and fluctuating market conditions. It is solving the problems of its members by the application of sound methods—and it is making headway. In the South, cotton cooperatives have secured great benefits for the cotton farmers. Such endeavors represent the best in agriculture today.

THE MODERN SMALL HOME

The small home of the future will be a very different sort of a place than that of the past. It will offer, at a very moderate price, advantages, conveniences and comforts that were unknown even in the mansions of another time. It will be more attractive to the eye, and offer infinitely greater possibilities for originality in design and treatment. And, most important of all perhaps, it will provide the maximum of protection against fire, tornadoes, hurricanes and other destructive elements.

The objectives to be attained in the modern home, are low first cost, low depreciation, low maintenance and long-time economy. And for three and four or five thousand dollars, distinctive homes embracing all these features, may be had.

In the not-too-distant future there is going to be a residential building boom in this country. America is "short" thousands of homes—population drift, coupled with fire and obsolescence and other destroyers, have continued to increase the housing need at a time when building of all kinds has been at the absolute bottom. The wise home builder, using modern materials and methods, is going to get more for what he spends than the home builder in the past imagined would ever be possible.

South Pole Dogs to Get Select Food

Admiral Byrd's Decision Is Result of Extensive Experimentation

Admiral Byrd's second South Polar expedition has been under way since October, via Panama and Australia. The early part of 1934 will see the Byrd ships, the sailing vessel, "Bear" and the S. S. "Jacob Ruppert," working their way through the ice pack that hems in the Ross Sea. Then they will sail across to the Bay of Whales and establish their base for the thorough exploration of the Antarctic domain.

Most important of all the supplies that have been shipped in the holds of these two vessels are 153 carefully selected dogs, real huskies of the Northland. These dogs represent the one dependable means of transportation after the Byrd expedition has established its base. Upon these dogs will depend in a large measure the range of the expedition's activities.

The task of keeping these dogs in top condition is a major concern. "A well dog is a well-fed dog," so along with the dogs are being transported 100,000 pounds of Dog Chow, a concentrated food for dogs. The selection of this food was not a haphazard matter.

Preparation; not on a mission as important as a South Polar trip!

Like the food for the men, the food for the dogs was selected only after being subjected to rigid tests to make sure that it would meet every requirement of the Commander.

Captain Allen Innes Taylor is in charge of the 153 dogs. It was under his direction that a man visited the Purina Mills' demonstration kennels at Gray Summit, Mo., last year.

He carefully went over the records of 850 dogs that have been reared in the experimental kennels to note the development of succeeding generations, as well as the general condition of some of the original animals that have produced as many as seven healthy litters, fed entirely during their lifetime upon Purina Dog Chow.

More than that, he examined the records of the biological laboratories maintained by Purina Mills at St. Louis and checked from a scientific basis each ingredient of this commercial product.

Satisfied that here was the most compact, most nourishing and dependable dog food available, Captain Taylor contracted 100,000 pounds of the regular brand of Purina Dog Chow for his huskies and had 40,000 pounds of the regular brand particularly fortified with fats for the feeding during the colder seasons of the two-year trip. Cold at the South pole means 50 degrees below F. During the season when the sun does not appear for as much as four months, temperatures of 70 degrees below F. are not uncommon.

The Byrd expedition will really start making exploration trips late in August or early September, 1934, when the sun again appears after its four months' hideout. Airplanes will be used to fly over the South pole and beyond.

The dogs, however, will transport men and supplies to the bases that must be established and make the dashes into the unexplored regions. Upon their health will depend the lives of the men who are working with the most advanced scientific instruments to give to the world new facts and data about the mysteries of Antarctica.

It was only natural that Dog Chow should find favor with the Commissary department, who, on this expedition, must plan to save every pound of excess weight. Dog Chow checkers contain meat of first quality in dehydrated form besides its other ingredients.

The removal of the excess water makes possible absolute safety in transporting the dog ration, as there is no danger from deterioration or spoilage. The weight is reduced by approximately two-thirds over ordinary dog rations—that would be needed for so large an expedition of working animals and allows for a tremendous margin of safety in supplies.

Each pound of Dog Chow is the equivalent of three pounds of fresh or canned meat. To equal in food value the 100,000 pounds taken on the expedition, it would be necessary for the explorers to carry 300,000 pounds of meat in the fresh or canned form. Aside from the dead weight that would have been placed upon the expedition's limited carrying capacity, the comparative expenditure in dollars would have been almost prohibitive.

So balanced, so scientifically constructed is the formula for Dog Chow that it will satisfy every need of the animals of the expedition without the addition of any other foods.

The expedition will be able to keep its Dog Chow anywhere. It will not require freezing through the tropics on the way down to retain its goodness. Only the ordinary care given in storing any sort of food stuffs will be required to supply the dogs with healthful, nourishing foods.

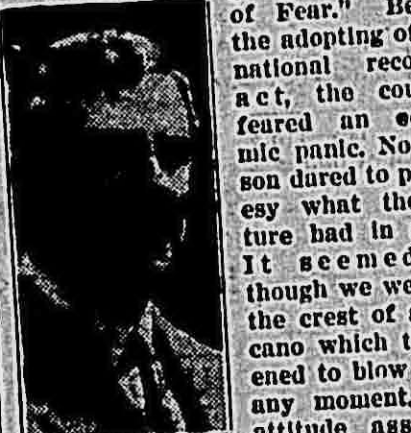

development in our economic and social life of those principles upon which the safety of a democracy depends. It will take time to complete the work of the recovery act. "No deep-seated or long-standing disease can be cured in a day." Live one day at a time. The conquest of fear is our most serious problem. May each person do his part in solving it by seeking strength for the responsibility of each day as it comes. This attitude will change fear to faith.

THE CONQUEST OF FEAR

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

The most serious problem confronting our country in the recovery program is the "Fear of Fear."

Before the adopting of the national recovery act, the country feared an economic panic. No person dared to prophesy what the future had in store.

It seemed as though we were on the crest of a volcano which threatened to blow up at any moment. The attitude assumed by many persons was to hoard all possessions, spend as little as possible and let debts ride.

Something happened. The recovery act was not only announced but put into active operation. The chief objective of this act was a very serious attempt to solve the paradox of "starvation in the midst of plenty."

The recovery act does not promise to work a miracle. It is no panacea for our economic ills. Its program will need to be modified as changing conditions arise. On the whole, however, it has accomplished a great step forward. The return of confidence means the conquest of fear. Not only will fear be conquered through confidence in our government but also through confidence in ourselves. This is no time to dissipate our strength by worrying over what is going to happen next year. Fear as to the future will yield to confidence in the present if we seek strength sufficient for each day's need. What we need is not a revolution, but an evolution—the gradual de-

Let the car speak for itself

HUNDREDS of thousands of people now own and drive Ford V-8 cars. Some neighbor or friend of yours has one. If we told you what we think of the car, you might say we are prejudiced, so we let the car and its owner tell you.

Economy of operation is one of the first points they will emphasize—the owner will boast of it and the car will prove it.

The 1934 car is even better than the 1933—and that was our best car up to its time. The new car is more beautiful—faster—more powerful—gives more miles to the gallon—better oil economy—is easier riding—cheaper to own and operate than any car we ever built.

You owe it to yourself and your pocketbook to ask our Ford Dealer to let you see this car, and let you drive it for yourself. At the wheel of the car you will be sure to reach a right decision. The Ford V-8 will tell you its own story.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Christian Science" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, December 24.

The Golden Text was, "These signs shall follow them that believe: In my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover" (Mark 16:17, 18).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now. Howbeit when he, the Spirit of truth, is come, he will guide you into all truth: for he shall not speak of himself; but whatsoever he shall hear, that shall he speak; and he will shew you things to come" (John 16:12, 13).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Led by a solitary star amid the darkness, the Magi of old foretold the Messiahship of Truth. Is the wise man of today believed, when he beholds the light which heralds Christ's eternal dawn and describes its effulgence?" (p. 95).

A New Year's Sermon

"If the first button of one's coat is buttoned wrong, all the rest will be awry," is the striking way Copernicus put a truth worth pondering. This gives us a peg on which to hang a New Year thought—BEGIN RIGHT. Giving God first place in your plans is like buttoning the first button on your coat in the first buttonhole. Then resolving to keep up the habit of church going will be like taking the right road on a long journey lasting throughout the whole year. Try it, and you will find the road leading to a year of usefulness and happiness.

The Young People of the Church are planning a New Year program: Devotional meeting at 7:30 P. M. in charge of the president, Miss Bertha Overton. Following will be a reception and a social program. A part of this period will be spent in enjoying a covered dish luncheon. You are asked to bring sandwiches and a dish to pass. A mid-night service will begin at 11:00 in charge of the First Department with Rev. Siller as leader.

An invitation is hereby extended to any friend or member of the Church to attend the program regardless of age. Plan to spend the evening in church fellowship.

Antioch B. B. Team Wins From Ela In Overtime

Barrington Aggregation Routs Antioch Squad Following Night

The Antioch high school basketball squad took a close victory from Ela Friday night in an overtime period, 18-14. The game was the most exciting that has been played on the home floor this season.

Antioch took an easy lead the first quarter, piling up nine points to Ela's two, and retained their lead during the second quarter, closing the half, 11-7. The boys failed to score a point during the third quarter, however, and Ela gained five points to shove ahead, 12-11, at the close of the third.

With two more minutes to play, the score stood 14-11 in Ela's favor, when Marvin Van Patten saved the evening for the local boys by making a free throw and a field goal to even up the count. In the three-minute overtime which followed Steffenburg and Van Patten each sank a basket in the last minute of play, to win the game 18-14.

The second team won 27-14.

HITTING THE CEILING—Our English cuisine in a rehearsal for a royal command performance prove that the famous American chorus has nothing on them in chaplines or dexterity.

LAUDS NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING—We are making extensive use of newspapers to advertise our new gasoline that gives quicker winter starting without sacrificing summer mileage," says Paul Ryan, advertising manager of Shell Petroleum Corporation, St. Louis, Mo., "because we have found that no other medium is so effective, especially when the information is real news."

These automobile designs, with rounded noses and tapering rears, incorporate many of the aerodynamic principles also used by airships. They travel with much less air resistance and vibration than the old fashioned car. Such functional design also permits great power economy.

THIS HOG ATE 24 BUSHELS OF CORN

THIS HOG ATE 10 1/2 BUSHELS OF CORN

Two Ways to Sell Corn on the Hoof—

This hog Received corn alone. Required 12 bushels of corn to make 100 lbs. of gain. Returned 33c per bu. at $4.00 per cwt. for hogs.

Required more labor, ran greater disease risk, was less thrifty and reached later market.

This hog Received a blended protein supplement along with the corn. Required 8 1/2 bu. of corn and 50 lbs. blended supplement for 100 lbs. of gain. Returned 53c for corn at $4.00 per cwt. for hogs, even after allowing $2.80 per cwt. for protein supplement. Took less labor, ran less disease risk, was thrifty and ready for earlier and higher market.

MAKE YOUR GRAIN FEED FARTHER

Even with the price of hogs and the price of corn as low as they were the past year, numerous controlled feed lot tests have shown that corn alone is the most expensive way to grow and fatten a hog. About twelve bushels of corn are required to produce 100 pounds of pork when fed without a protein supplement to hogs in a dry lot. If hogs are $4 a hundred pounds, that means 32 cents a bushel for corn, allowing nothing for labor and other costs.

Long ago it became known that corn was deficient in protein. Tankage which is very high in protein became the most popular protein supplement to be fed to hogs along with corn. But, tankage also was found to have shortcomings. In the last ten years good hog feeders have learned through work at the agricultural experiment stations and at the Purina Experimental Farm at Gray Summit, Mo., that a variety of proteins will produce better results than will tankage alone.

Now a new forward step has been taken, that of blending. All proteins are not alike and the hog does not make equally good use of all kinds. In a properly blended supplement the different protein building materials for muscle and bone are supplied in such proportions that there is less waste of protein and the amount of feed to put on 100 pounds of pork is reduced. The feed goes farther.

The bill of materials for a house differs from that required to build a barn. Neither a house or a barn could be built efficiently in accordance with a definite plan from a miscellaneous lot of building material. Likewise, nature builds the pig's body according to a definite plan. But man often supplies merely a miscellaneous lot of material. The result is waste of those materials supplied in excess of needs, and failure of construction or growth to proceed at the maximum rate because of a deficiency of other materials.

To find out the most efficient combination of protein sources, the workers at the Purina Experimental Farm inquired at the only reliable source for an answer—the hogs themselves. Over 8,000 hogs have been asked by Purina Research workers, "What do you need in your ration to make more money for hog owners?"

The hogs gave the answer in terms easy to understand. While twelve bushels of corn when fed alone are required to make 100 pounds of gain in weight, with a properly blended protein supplemental chow, 100 pounds of gain can be made from 50 pounds of supplement and slightly over five bushels of corn. Fifty pounds of the supplement, therefore, saves better than six bushels of corn.

Besides making grain feed farther, the blended protein supplement also saves labor and reduces risk by shortening the time from birth to market and it makes possible getting the pigs on the earlier markets during the fall and the spring when prices are usually higher than later.

"Making grain feed farther is highly important this year," say the Purina research men, "because of the shortage of feed crops and the desire of every feeder to make his own grain last through the feeding period."

MADE REGULAR EXERCISING IN NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS

Sensible Reducing Is Beneficial—and Not Very Painful

Now that the holiday season is over, and New Year's is so nearly near, it's an ideal time to make resolutions about paring down figure and getting it in trim for 1934.

As a general rule, we do eat too much in winter—too many heavy foods; and we don't exercise enough. If you follow movie news at all, you surely have heard that Clara Bow reduced over seventeen pounds by exercising and taking vegetable and fruit juices.

It just doesn't do to cut down the diet too strictly, but there's no harm in refusing an extra helping of potatoes or another slice of bread, and (now that you've had the benefit of Christmas sweets) omitting candy for a while.

Now for some exercises for general reducing. 1. Sit up straight on floor, legs outstretched. Then touch fingers to toes, keeping the knees straight.

2. Repeat No. 1, then touch fingers to alternate toes.

3. Lie flat on the floor, the hands clasped behind in back of the neck. Raise head and touch elbows to knees.

4. Lie flat on the back, hands clasped in back of the neck. Raise legs to vertical position, then lower slowly to floor.

5. Lie flat on the floor, arms at sides under the hips. Raise legs with feet held tightly together, swinging from left to right.

Calorie Game

In spite of male laughter at counting the calories, it can be made into an amusing game if not carried to extremes, to the point of discomfort both to yourself and your associates.

Most women require from 1,500 to 2,500 calories per day, depending upon their size and the type of occupation. Why not get a chart, and check up on the calorie value of some of the foods in which you've been indulging?

OUR CHILD AND THE SCHOOL

By ALLEN G. IRLAND
Director of Physical Education
New Jersey State Department of Public Instruction

Bad Posture

I have mentioned poor or bad posture as an accompaniment of improper diet. It isn't always present, but slouching and other posture defects do often occur with and as a result of undernourishment. The reason is not obscure.

Muscle strength and tone depend upon a proper and adequate food supply. Muscles fed from the food we eat. As would expect, they need certain kinds of foods. That is nature's way with humans, as well with animals and plants. Some go to build, while others are harmful. So there are those that make muscles strong.

It is easy to see what happens when the muscles are weak and the bony skeleton droops. And to sag. Of course, they are far out of position, but the slouch aren't strong enough to hold them in place. And all the force of gravity is at work when we stand the tendency to slouch is aggravated. The child who leaves his seat and goes to the vegetable, or who has an appetite with an excess of sweets and pastries, is likely to have a bad posture case.

Dr. Ireland will receive patients at his home.

How to Eat for Health and Beauty

Sheila Terry and Gloria Shea of Warner Brothers Pictures seem to have found the secret of how to play in the sun without acquiring a sunburn.

IN THE summertime there's no need to supplement your beauty diets with cod liver oil for you can get your Vitamin D very pleasantly on the beach. In case you've acquired a sunburn or tan along with the Vitamin D, and would like to regain your winter complexion, here are a few suggestions: A healing lotion for a bad case of sunburn is made of equal parts of lime water and linseed oil. Either lemon juice or diluted peroxide is an excellent face bleach, but don't expect results in a minute, and be sure to use cold cream after allowing the liquid to dry.

Colored Pieces Of Furniture Will Brighten Your Rooms

The Paint Brush Artistically Welded Can Do Much with Shabby Room

Thoughts of New Year's are always tinged with brightness—like a white package with a gay bit of ribbon. An elusive hint of red and green is there, lurking around the corner, although one often is unaware of it.

This is the year for color—despite the fact that the season did start out somberly with black garments. Sport clothes have more flamboyant combinations of colors than ever before; draperies, wall coverings, cushions, and curtains, all reflect the general trend away from drabness.

Of course, it isn't possible in most cases to purchase a new rug, or have the wall repapered, or perhaps even to get new curtains to conform exactly to the latest. One of the easiest ways of enlivening a room that wears a slightly peevish air is to introduce an up-to-date note by means of some pieces, or even one article of colored furniture.

Spruce up for the New Year. One might plan to surprise New Year's guests or homing members of the family this winter by means of a change in the color combination of the living room. Silver end-tables add a distinctive touch to a room, and it wouldn't be much effort to transform them.

Smart dining rooms are combining painted furniture with pieces of natural finish, lending a homey liveliness.

There are some who might say, "I've been in style all this time—with all my bright furniture." But the room mustn't be too bright, or boast a conglomeration of too many colors—that shows a lack of artistic taste, and is rather tawdry.

For an over-bright room a dark subdued note may be introduced by the addition of a black cabinet, or a lightening be effected by white flowers, or light painted furniture.

White leather is becoming more popular, used on seats of white Chipendale chairs grouped about a Chipendale table of mahogany.

There are so many possibilities of color by the paint brush that an amateur, after a little study, may give his shabby room her chance to shine up her room.

1 cup sugar
1 cup water

Wash and dry cranberries and prick each several places with a needle. Boil sugar and water to 230 degrees F or to the stage where it will spin a thread. Cook cranberries gently in syrup until syrup reaches hard crack stage. Remove berries to wax paper. Cool and dry. Roll in granulated sugar.

Cocconut Bars

1 tablespoon butter
2 cups sugar
1/2 cup milk
1/4 teaspoon almond flavoring
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup shredded cocconut

Melt butter, add sugar and milk, bring to boiling point. Do not stir while cooking. Cook to soft ball stage, 240 degrees F. Cool, beat well, add cocconut and flavoring. Put in shallow pan. Cut when cold into bars 1x2 1/2 inches. Makes two dozen bars.

Fondant

2 cups sugar
2/3 cup water
1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar.

Put sugar and water in saucepan, place over low fire, stir constantly until sugar has dissolved. Keep sides of saucepan free from grains of sugar by brushing with cloth or brush dipped in cold water. Add cream of tartar, cover and allow to boil three minutes. Then uncover and boil rapidly to the soft ball stage, 240 degrees F. Pour onto platter or marble slab that has been rinsed with cold water. Allow to cool undisturbed. When cold work from edges toward center with a spatula. When too firm to handle with spatula knead with hands into a white mass. Put on board covered with damp cloth for half an hour. Put in glass container, cover with damp cloth and allow to ripen 24 hours. Makes one pound.

Chocolate Marshmallows

Melt one cake dipping chocolate over hot water (not boiling). Put marshmallows on small wooden pick and dip in chocolate until thoroughly coated. Place on wax paper to dry.

CHRYSANTHEMUM BLOOMS REQUIRE SPECIAL CARE

Should some one have been so kind as to have presented you with a bouquet of chrysanthemums for Christmas, you'd want to keep them fresh as long as possible. But do you know the proper way of preserving them? Most of us know little about them or their care.

Unlike roses, the stems of chrysanthemums are not cut with a knife to permit absorption of fresh water. The cut of a dull blade is apt to close up the pores of the soft wood and retard the freshening action of the water.

The stems should be gently broken off, instead, near the bottom, so that the flowers can absorb all the water they want. If the stems are broken off each morning, and the flowers kept in a cool place at night, they will last much longer.

There are several kinds of chrysanthemums—a bronze one called a Gladys Pearson; a white pom-pom called the Garza. Of the small pom-pom chrysanthemums, there are the Dorothy Turner and the Bea.

Chrysanthemums will be in season until February.

Hot Grape Juice Makes Distinctive Winter Beverage

"Yes, tea and coffee are all right, but just this once I'd like to serve a hot drink that's different."

Have you ever felt that way? Now if you took advantage of the blue grape season, you'll be all set. Try this, using unfermented grape juice.

Beat the yolk and white of an egg separately and to the yolk add one tablespoon of sugar, a dash of cinnamon and cloves, and one cup of unfermented grape juice. Place this over hot water until the mixture is slightly thickened, fold in the stiffly beaten egg white and a little salt and beat them for two minutes over the hot water. When the egg white is completely incorporated and the beverage is piping hot, serve it at once.

This drink, served with wafer thin sandwiches with a filling of cream cheese and chopped olives, makes an inexpensive and distinctive refreshment.

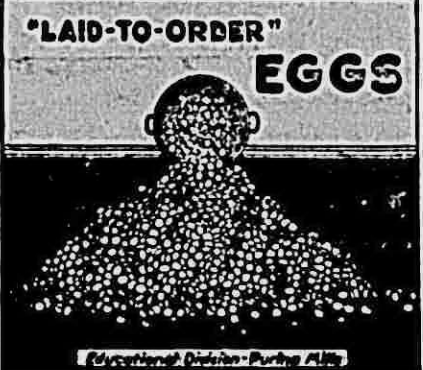

EGGS' WHITES ARE NOW CONTROLLED

77,000 Eggs Are Broken to Make Possible a Better Feed.

The feed that goes into the hen largely determines the quality of the egg produced. Every poultry raiser knows this and if you are on good enough terms with him he will demonstrate to you why certain feeds produce deep colored yolks and others light colored yolks. At the same time he will admit that it is hard to control the exact shade of the yolks the year around.

Feed manufacturers have long ago discovered that the success of a poultryman depends upon pleasing his market, so they have tried to provide a feed mixture which will produce the kind of eggs that will bring poultrymen top prices. The problem of shading the yolk is only one part of the secret.

More difficult is the selection of feeds that will produce the ideal white for each egg. Thin watery whites are not ideal. The white must be thick and firm and stay close to the yolk in the poaching pan or on the straight "up" orders.

To solve this problem Purina Experimental Farm of Gray Summit, Mo., several years ago began a record egg breaking and testing experiment. Many combinations of feed were fed to specially selected flocks. Eggs from these hens were numbered for easy identification and then the eggs were broken and compared to the specifications that had been set up by egg market experts.

In all of these feeding experiments the first objective of the feed was not overlooked. Feed is meant to produce first of all, eggs in quantity. Only after this requirement is satisfied can the quality part follow.

More than 77,000 eggs were individually handled and broken in this exhaustive search for the ideal combination. One dozen or one hundred dozen eggs broken from hens fed on the egg quality formula finally adopted look as alike as peas in a pod. The full meaning of such a feed can only be fully appreciated by poultrymen who have had the ingenuity to work up a special market for their product and who know the advantages of an increased income that American preference for quality makes possible.

Changing birds over to this new feed is simple. Pullets on the range are changed over at eighteen weeks of age. Scratch grains are decreased gradually in proportion as the new feed replaces the other feed. Laying hens can be changed to the new feed at any time of the year according to the poultry experts at the Purina Experiment Farm. As is the usual practice in changing a flock's ration, two weeks should be allowed for making the change and no change should be made during extremely cold weather or when birds are in peak production.

Long Lake Cottage Burns

Fire early Sunday, Dec. 17, destroyed a Long Lake cottage valued at $1,500, according to a report made to the sheriff by Deputy Sheriff Gene Palmieri and Arthur Griese. The place was owned by E. B. Pederson, of Chicago, and was unoccupied. The Round Lake fire department fought the blaze. The cause of the fire is unknown. —Libertyville Independent-Register.

Oppose Re-routing of 41
A drastic step to prevent re-routing of Highway 41 in Pleasant Prairie township was taken Dec. 20 when more than 100 property owners residing along the present highway, after pointing out several major objections to a change in the course of the road, offered to donate to the federal government a six-foot strip of land on either side of the roadway for widening purposes.

ODD THINGS AND NEW—By Lane Bode

"Buy Illinois" Says Director of State Agricultural Department

DURING the World War all patriotic American citizens decreased their consumption of the food products of which there was a shortage—white bread, butter, sugar and so on. Now in this depression crisis it seems to be just as much a patriotic duty to buy the products of the state for several years put this theory into practice. Actually Illinois apple orchards bear just as abundantly (more abundantly in fact) and our own girls are just as beautiful as the Michigan blossom queens.

However, unlike the war-time condition when doing without certain foods was a real hardship, today, using more of these surplus products is not a difficult task but simply means eating more of the foods most people like anyway—and need for health—for among Illinois' leading food products are what nutritionists term the "protective foods"—the ones that for the best health must be included in the diet, no matter what else is eliminated.

Illinois Produces "Protective Foods."

These protective foods are: milk, fresh fruits and vegetables and eggs. Milk, which heads the list of Illinois' home-produced foodstuffs, is always pleasing as a beverage and necessary in preparing attractive cooked dishes. And it happens conveniently that Illinois' chief fruit and vegetable crops are among the most popular—corn, potatoes, apples, peaches and grapes. Corn, especially when served on the cob, is one of our most popular and typical American dishes; few of us would go through a day without eating potatoes; and apples, peaches, and grapes are among the most luscious of our fruits, each so different in flavor that if one does not appeal the other must.

Director McLaughlin will show how individuals can accomplish three things by using Illinois' chief products—improve their own health and appearance; economize on their food bills; and last, help the farmer's economic condition, which will in turn react favorably on their own.

WALTER W. McLAUGHLIN, DIRECTOR, ILLINOIS DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE to increase the consumption of those foodstuffs of which there is now an oversupply—a condition which is one of the factors that is holding us back from progressing out of our present state.

In articles in this paper, McLaughlin, the Director of Agriculture, the State of Illinois, will show how individual citizens can help the Illinois farmer back to his feet by using more of his chief products. Many states already sell the necessity for promoting their own products. For example, Michigan with its fruit blossom fes-

SPECIAL SESSION

but the governor had Billman. The latter said the amendments carried out the great Treaty of the Executive Mansion. The governor said Billman must be right.

Then some Democratic politicians shot it out with each other outside of an all-night saloon in Chicago and a protest went up all over the state demanding that the pledges of the two great political parties be carried out and the saloon abolished. President Roosevelt, too, had demanded this action by the states.

But this was asking too much of the Chicago Democratic crowd which has already collected an estimated $2,000,000,000 in connection with the granting of beer licenses. Gov. Horner, even, didn't want to go that far. The senate voted down an amendment by Sen. Roy C. Woods, Chicago Republican, which would have abolished the saloon. The members then voted in all kinds of amendments—anything for pretense and nothing very serious. It was all in a spirit of good, clean fun with the general understanding that the bill would be killed sooner or later anyhow.

When the senate adjourned no one knew just exactly what the bill contained. No one cared, except a few earnest senators who believe they will take up the fight again on Jan. 3 for the regulation of liquor and the abolishment of the saloon of the saloon.

In the meantime Kelly and Nash are expected to get together again—with all of their previous witnesses—and have a recount to determine just who did what to whom and why.

It becomes more evident every day that the legislature is in special session that the amaturishness of the state administration is responsible for the liquor control mess. Had Gov. Horner vetoed repeal of the state prohibition law until a regulatory measure had been passed the present trouble would have been avoided and the state saved the thousands of dollars that are being lost every day. Now that the state prohibition law is dead, the wide open, politically controlled saloon interests don't care if the state never gets a regulatory law and are doing all they can to prevent passage of such a law.

Title Certificate Required to Obtain 1934 Auto Licenses

Springfield, Ill. (Special)—Property rights of Illinois motorists will be carefully protected by the long arm of the law, from the moment they acquire one of the new 1934 automobile licenses.

Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes has made this clear in the regulations he has just issued for all those who apply for licenses. Only those proving legal ownership will be granted an automobile license, and with it the Secretary will issue a certificate of title, which must be endorsed and passed on to the new owner when the car is sold.

Every motorist's ownership of the car he drives will be based on his possession of a certificate of title. Automobile thieves will find Illinois an unprofitable field for their activities, Secretary Hughes predicted.

Regulations provide that owners of vehicles now registered in Illinois may prove ownership of their cars by merely referring to their present registration. To obtain a certificate of title the name of the person from whom the car was purchased should be given as indicated on the application form, together with the date of purchase, description of car, model, factory and motor numbers.

To prove legal ownership, the owner of a new car must submit a bill of sale; the buyer of a used car must present either a bill of sale from the previous owner or some other satisfactory proof of legal ownership.

Cars now registered in other states where anti-theft laws pertain must show a certificate of title from that state.

Any liens or mortgages outstanding against a car must be indicated in the applications for certificate of title.

All motor driven vehicles are covered by the law, including passenger cars, motor trucks, busses, tractors, motorcycles, traction engines, and "any other vehicle propelled otherwise than by muscular power."

A charge of fifty cents in addition to the regular license fee will pay for the certificate of title, the legislature provided, but one certificate is good for the life of the car, or until it is sold.

After January 1, when the car is sold, the seller endorses his certificate of title over to the purchaser, and the new owner sends it to the Secretary of State together with his application for a new certificate of title.

All motor vehicle fees paid to the Secretary of State go to the state road building fund, for new roads or retirement of road bonds, but the fees for certificates of title go into the general revenue fund.

Striking at the widespread motor car thievery, the law also is aimed at traffic in second-hand accessories. Dealers in second-hand cars and accessories, excepting factory branches and authorized new car dealers, must be licensed to do business, and—as a condition to obtaining a license—must consent to keep a record of their stock and have it available for police examination at all times. When junking a car, a certificate of junking must be obtained from the Secretary of State before any attempt is made to salvage the parts. Secretary Hughes expects that these protective measures will result in a saving of $6,000,000 to Illinois motorists through reduced premiums on car theft insurance. Mr. Hughes announced he would personally request insurance companies to make the reduction, pointing out that in all the 24 other states where similar laws are in effect, reductions have been made.
